Author's Notes:
Inspired by a friend who I swear is one day going to vanish in the pile of dishes in her sink, and on her table, and.... ;)

He was in trouble.

He had to do something, so he rolled onto his side and ran a finger down the ridges of Henjo's spine.

"I'm sorry."

A snort.

He snuggled closer. "Tell me a story?"

A sigh.

"Once upon a time there was this little German boy who never listened and one day everything he had left became so much that he got lost forever in the mess. The people that loved him were sad because if he had listened everything would be fine. The end."

Kai sighed.

"I'll do the dishes in the morning Hen, promise."

Henjo smirked.
